

CHILDREN LOVE JOHNNY DOWNS

By DONALD FREEMAN
The San Diego Union's Radio-TV Editor

JOHNNY DOWNS HAS THE HIGHEST RATING of all multi-weekly television shows viewed in San Diego. At 6:30 on week nights, Downs frequently captures more viewers than all other stations—San Diego and Los Angeles—combined. Downs, who is "Johnny Jet" to the smalldom on Channel 6, was once a movie star. A year ago, he left Hollywood to learn the television trade, hoping to soak up enough knowledge to become a TV director. Instead, Downs developed into a children's performer whose success has been both unexpected—least of all by Downs himself—and phenomenal.

The small he draws is a staggering display of his young viewers' loyalty. All of this is something of a puzzle to Downs, who although not a man given much to introspection, is concerned by the responsibility that was absent in his career in films and the stage.

"This is more than just a theatrical performance," Downs admitted. "These kids believe in me. I don't want this to sound prudish or salutary—I'm just a human being—but you are here because you like me."

Freeman not a man given much to introspection, is concerned by the responsibility that was absent in his career in films and the stage.

Wallace, who emcees the weekly CBS-TV color program "The New Revue" on Friday afternoons, predicts that tinted TV will make such video performers as Jackie Gleason, Edward R. Murrow, Sid Caesar and John Cameron Swayze the male fashion leaders of the country.

"Men want color," he says. "They're wristful about color—and they're going to get it."

"I'm sure color television is going to wind up in a revolution in men's fashions—return to past centuries when men went in for colorful attire."

Wallace says black and white TV is unable to appeal to men's color consciousness

As the big movie companies once did, CBS decided and as a result dark ties are in vogue, and before that it was the rep tie with a stripe. But with color, he says, men not only will note the cut of their favorite star's suit and the pattern of his tie, but the colors as well, and be guided accordingly when they go shopping.

Wallace, incidentally, is among the busier performers in television, along with his pretty wife Buff. He also is narrator and master of ceremonies for the ambitious CBS radio program "Stage Struck," which takes listeners backstage at Broadway plays, and the weekly CBS-TV "I'll Buy That."

It's due in part to the fact that he and his wife, granddaughter of humorist Irving S. Cobb, are what might be called survivors of a CBS experiment in signing performers to long-term contracts.

Television needs both live and filmed shows, says Sheldon Reynolds, producer of the filmed "Foreign Intrigue."

Taking a middle ground in a controversy that has raged since TV started, the young producer, writer and director says, "I feel that filmed and live shows are not competitive."

It depends on what the show is, he declares. If it's a play of the type you might see in a legitimate theater with a limited setting, or a variety or quiz show, he says, it should be live. If it's a story in which locale and broad scope are important, then he feels that film is the only answer.
